Contents

Foreword. Living with Death by Timothy J. Clark .......................................................... VII

Introduction. Roman Decorated Sarcophagi as a Source for the Cultural Historian by Christopher H. Hallett .......................................................... 1

Putting the Deceased in the Picture: »Pictorial Devices« as Visual Cues by Paul Zanker .......................................................... 9

Why Mythology? by Alan Cameron ...................................................................................... 27

The Violence of Emotions: Death, Myths, and Empathy in Rome (and Etruria) by Francesco de Angelis .......................................................... 43

Mythologizing Death: Silvae and Sarcophagi by Kathleen M. Coleman .......................................................... 57

Vivi fecerunt. Roman Sarcophagi for and by the Living by Ruth Bielfeldt .......................................................... 65

Isolating the Deceased in the Picture: Tools and Technique on Mythological Sarcophagi by Mont Allen .......................................................... 97

Standardization and Transformation. Some Observations on the Sarcophagus Trade and Sarcophagus Production by Michael Koortbojian .......................................................... 125

Hidden Splendour: The Display Context of Metropolitan Sarcophagi by Barbara E. Borg .......................................................... 145

Mythology and Sarcophagi at Aphrodisias and Rome by R. R. R. Smith .......................................................... 161

Roundtable Discussion by Christopher H. Hallett .......................................................... 177